Martin returned to his wheel at 9.05 o'clock, still very weak and woe-begone, but with a buildog determination that was wonderful. He displayed an energy and ambition worthy of a better cause as he set out to overcome the long lead walter had over him.

Albert, whose chances for second money accemed so bright yesterday, had to give in at last to Dame Nature. He went to bed at 2.23 and slept the sleep of the six-day racer for six hours. He was stiff, haggard and worn when he returned to his wheel, but good for a day's riding that would put him in third place if the rumors about Waller's badly used-up condition were fulfilled, although ite must run 150 miles in fourteen hours to do it—a better speed by a mile an hour than Martin did the last day in his sreat race.

Waller had taken four hours' rest last night, but his retirement again at 5.19 was absolutely necessary. His eyes and his wrists were in dreadful shape.

Martin took two naps, one of three-hours, twenty minutes, and another, as stated, of two hours, twelve minutes, and another, as stated, of two hours, twelve minutes, and shout his greated to take the chance within his grasp to win fourth place. homeless felines. She is forced to the conclusion that she got into a nest of cranks. What they do and what they say will appear in her story in The Sunday World.

Some of these well-meaning women have names for the cats and talk about them just as they would abdut children. They go out at all hours of the night to pursue their work and poison cats that won't go home till morning. No decent cat with a home had any excuse for being out after midnight at the latest. That old chestnut about being at the lodge doesn't go with members of this Society to Destroy Cats.
